FREE DBE Home Education Preparation Guide

Your Complete 4-Week Action Plan to DBE Home Education Registration

Step-by-Step Guidance

Navigate every phase of the DBE home education registration with clear instructions.

Weekly Action Plan

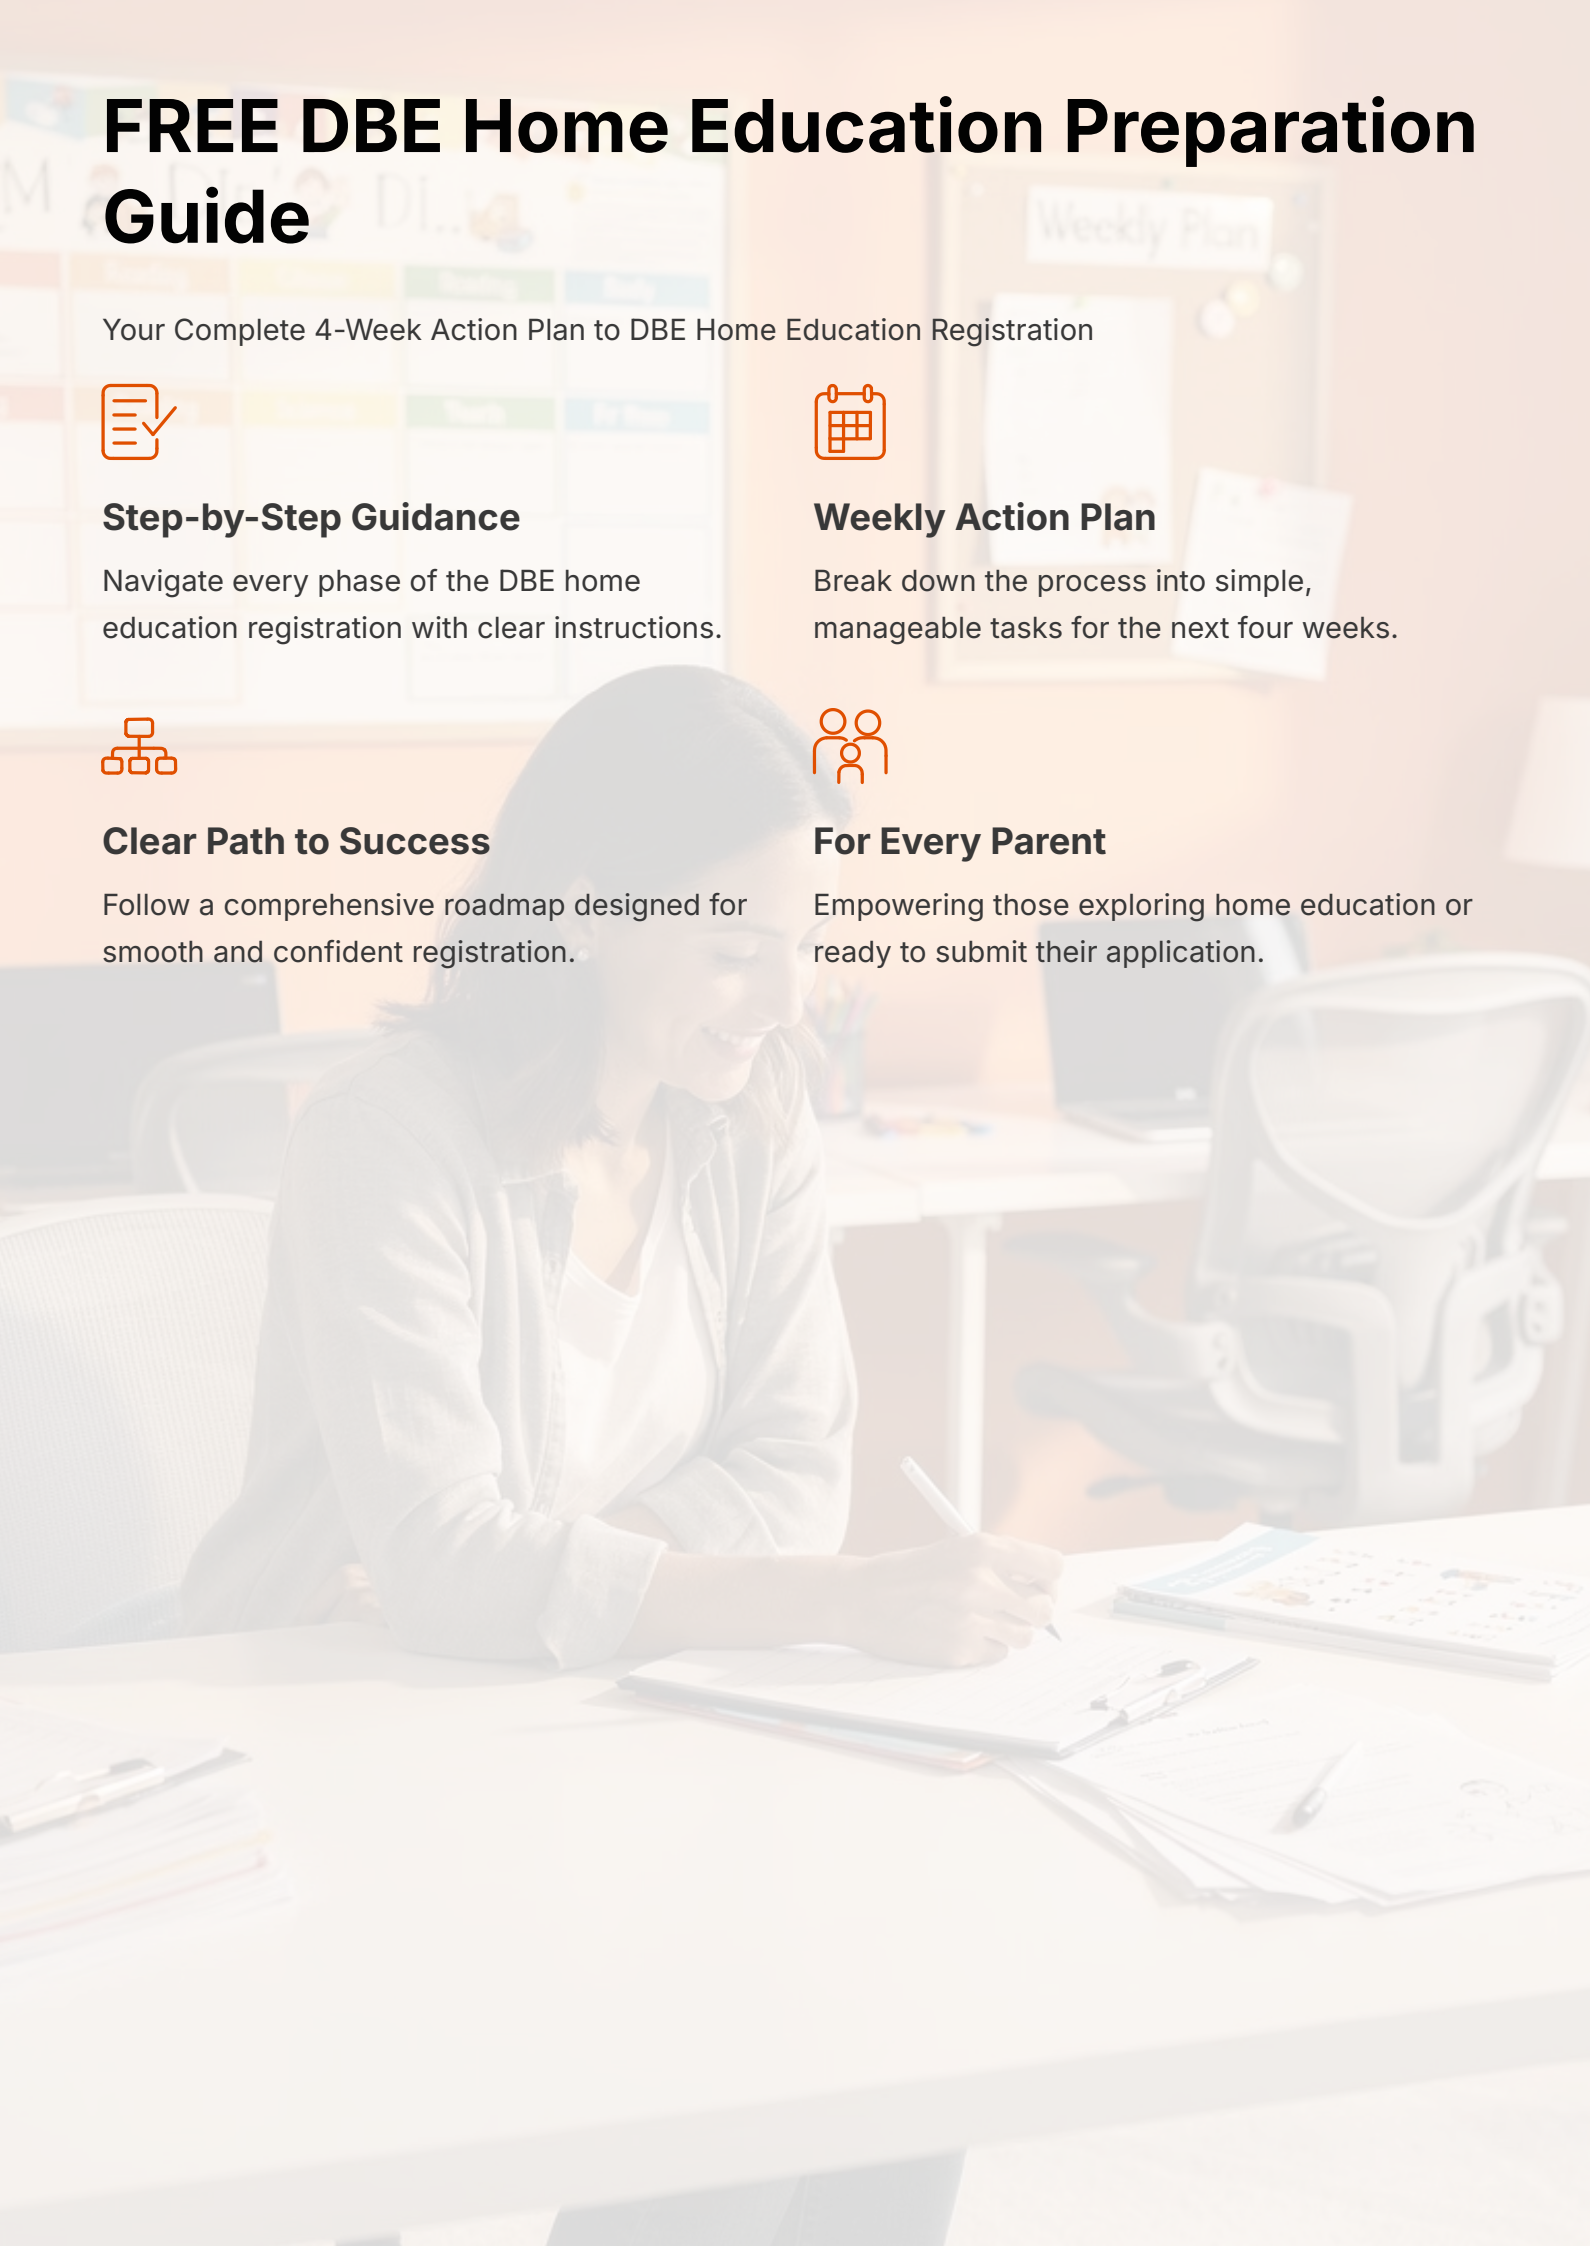

Break down the process into simple, manageable tasks for the next four weeks.

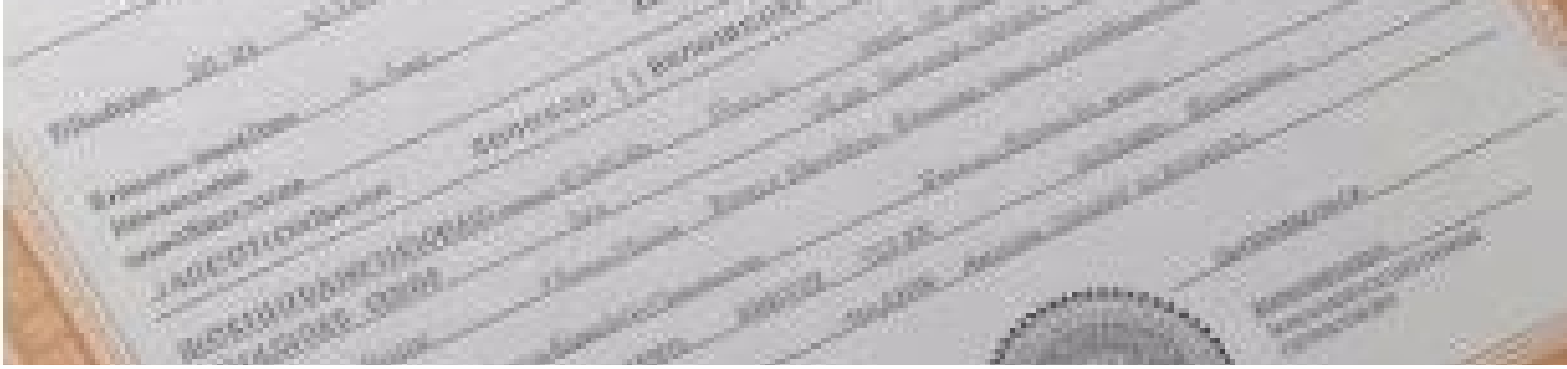

Clear Path to Success

Follow a comprehensive roadmap designed for smooth and confident registration.

For Every Parent

Empowering those exploring home education or ready to submit their application.

Week 1: Document Gathering

Start collecting these documents NOW – some take 6–8 weeks to arrive. The most critical step in your home education journey is gathering the proper documentation. Many parents underestimate how long it takes to obtain certified copies and official documents, which can delay your entire application process.

Child's Unabridged Birth Certificate

Original unabridged (long form) birth certificate showing both parents' details. Must be CERTIFIED less than 3 months old at submission. If you have the original, get it certified FREE at any SAPS police station or R10–R20 at the post office. If you don't have it, apply at Home Affairs (in-person or online at www.gov.za). Cost: R75. Timeline: 6–8 weeks.

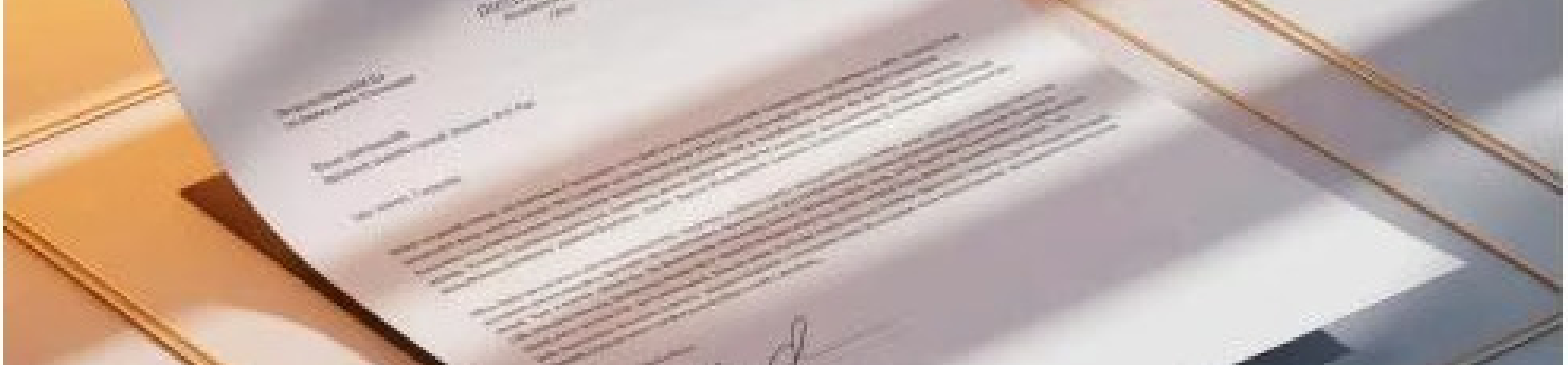

Parent ID Document

South African ID (green book or smart card) or Passport with valid visa/permit. Must be CERTIFIED less than 3 months old. Check your ID condition now – if it's damaged, start the replacement process immediately as this can take several weeks.

Child's Most Recent School Report

Latest report card with principal's signature and school stamp. If your child never attended school, mark as "N/A" on application. We'll use developmental milestones instead. Request this document in writing to ensure proper documentation.

CRITICAL: Order NOW even if not applying immediately! Birth certificates take the longest to arrive.

Week 1 Continued: Final Documents

1

Proof of Residence

Acceptable documents include municipal bill, bank statement, or lease agreement (less than 3 months old and certified). Make sure the document clearly shows your name and current address. If you're living with family or renting informally, you may need an affidavit from the property owner along with their proof of residence.

2

Transfer Certificate (The Workaround)

If the school refuses to issue one until placement is confirmed, use the Legal Workaround Letter: "Transfer certificate requested from [School Name] on [Date]. School has indicated certificate will be issued upon confirmation of alternative placement. This application serves as formal notification of withdrawal..."

01

Apply for birth certificate (if needed)

START IMMEDIATELY – this takes the longest

02

Check parent ID condition

Replace if damaged or expired

03

Request school report

With principal signature and stamp

04

Gather proof of residence

Check date is within 3 months

05

Request transfer certificate

In writing with documented follow-up

Week 2: School Coordination

Formal school notification is a critical step that requires careful documentation. This week focuses on properly communicating with your child's current school and ensuring you have all necessary records. Many parents encounter resistance from schools during this phase, so it's essential to know your rights and follow proper procedures.

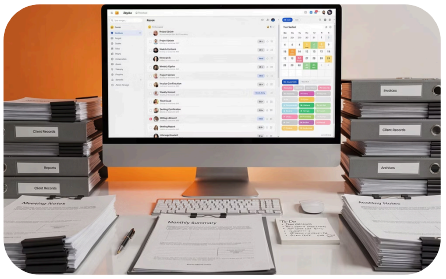

Formal School Notification

Use this template for your withdrawal notice:

Subject: Notice of Withdrawal for Home Education Registration

Dear [Principal Name], I am writing to formally notify you of my decision to withdraw my child, [Child Full Name], currently in Grade [X], to pursue home education registration with the Department of Basic Education. This decision is made in accordance with Section 13, BELA Act 32 of 2024 and National Policy on Home Education (2018). I request the following: (1) Transfer certificate, (2) Academic records, (3) Written acknowledgment.

Track Communication

Document everything: Save all email correspondence, note dates of phone calls and the name of the person you spoke to, and request written acknowledgment of withdrawal. This documentation protects you if any disputes arise later in the process.

Gather Historical Records

Optional but helpful: Past 2–3 years of report cards, teacher observations or specialist assessments. These documents can strengthen your application by showing your child's educational history and any special learning needs or achievements.

- Send formal withdrawal notification to school, request transfer certificate and records in writing, save all correspondence (emails, letters, receipts), and follow up after 7 days if no response.

Week 3: Application Preparation

This is the most intensive week of your preparation. You'll be creating the core documents that form your DBE application. These documents demonstrate your capability to provide quality home education and your commitment to meeting national standards. Take your time with each document – quality matters more than speed.

Download Blank DBE Forms

Ensure you use the provincial-specific form for your area. Forms vary slightly between provinces; using the wrong one can cause delays. Check your provincial education department website for the most current version.

Draft Motivation Letter (3 Pages)

Your letter should follow this structure: Introduction (who you are and legal grounding under BELA Act 32 of 2024), Reasons & Evidence (specific learning needs, medical requirements, or philosophical approach), and Capability (your background and commitment to national standards).

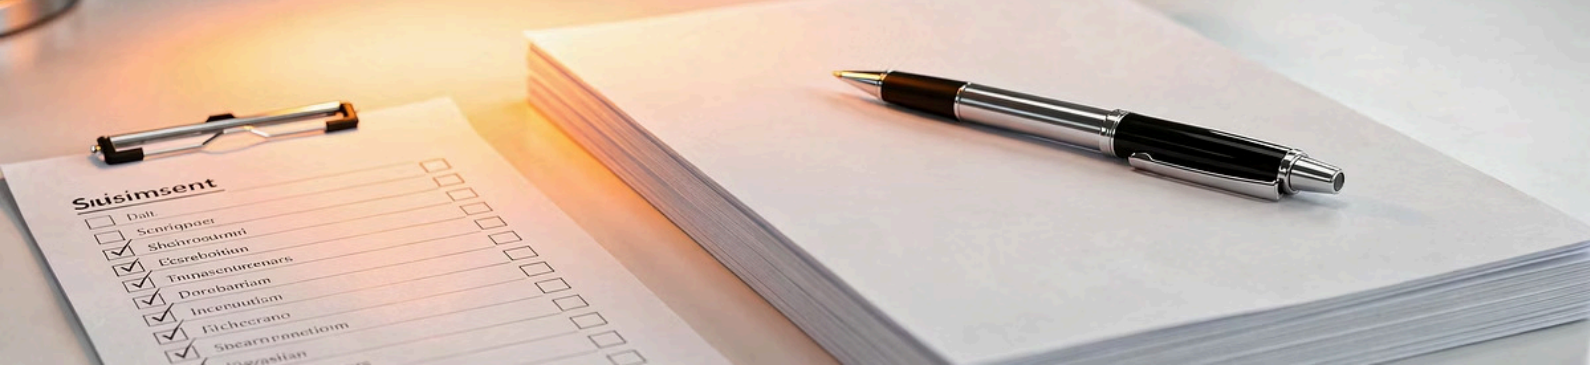

Outline Educational Plan (6-8 Pages)

Include: Programme Overview, Curriculum Framework (CAPS alignment recommended), Subject Breakdown & Resources, Daily/Weekly Schedule, and Assessment & Evaluation methods. This document is the heart of your application.

Diagnostic Assessment Baseline (5 Pages)

Define where your child is currently at: Current Academic Performance, Learning Profile (Strengths/Weaknesses), and Readiness for Home Education. This establishes a baseline for measuring future progress.

Professional Shortcut: P-Squared Academy can generate these 4 documents (103-field form, motivation, plan, assessment) in 30 minutes, personalized to your child and legally compliant.

Week 4: Submission

You've reached the final week – submission time! This is where all your preparation comes together. Double-check everything before submitting, as incomplete applications are the most common reason for delays or rejections. Take the time to review each document carefully and ensure all certifications are current.

Option 1: Email (Preferred)

Instant delivery and proof of sending. Name files clearly: DBE_Application_[ChildName].pdf. Send to your provincial office email address and request a read receipt. Keep a copy of the sent email with timestamp for your records.

Option 2: In-Person

Immediate stamped acknowledgment. Bring the original plus 2 certified copies of everything. This method provides instant confirmation of receipt and allows you to ask questions directly to the officials.

Tracking Your Application

After submission, patience and persistence are key. Understanding the typical timeline helps you know when to follow up and when to be concerned. Most applications are processed within 30-45 days, but this can vary by province and time of year.

Days 1–7

Expect acknowledgment of receipt and a reference number. If you don't receive this within 7 days, follow up with the provincial office to confirm they received your application.

Days 14–30

Normal processing period. Your application is being reviewed by education officials. They may contact you during this time if they need clarification or additional information.

Days 30–45

Expected response (Approval or request for info). Most decisions are made during this window. An approval letter will outline any conditions or requirements for your home education program.

Days 45+

Follow up politely but persistently. If you haven't heard back after 45 days, contact the provincial office weekly. Reference your application number and submission date in all communications.

Provincial DBE Office Contacts

Having the correct contact information for your provincial office is essential. Each province has its own home education department with specific procedures and requirements. Keep these contacts handy throughout your application process for quick reference when you need to follow up or ask questions.

Common Mistakes to Avoid

Learning from others' mistakes can save you time, frustration, and potential rejection. These are the most common pitfalls that trip up home education applicants. By being aware of these issues in advance, you can ensure your application process goes smoothly and efficiently.

Incomplete Documentation

Ensure all required forms and supporting documents are attached and properly filled out. Missing even one document can result in your entire application being returned unprocessed. Create a checklist and verify each item before submission.

Missing Deadlines

Submit your application well in advance of any specified due dates to allow for processing time. Some provinces have specific windows for applications, especially if you want to start at the beginning of the academic year.

Uncertified Copies

Always provide certified copies of official documents as required, with recent certification dates. Documents certified more than 3 months ago will not be accepted. Plan ahead to get fresh certifications before submission.

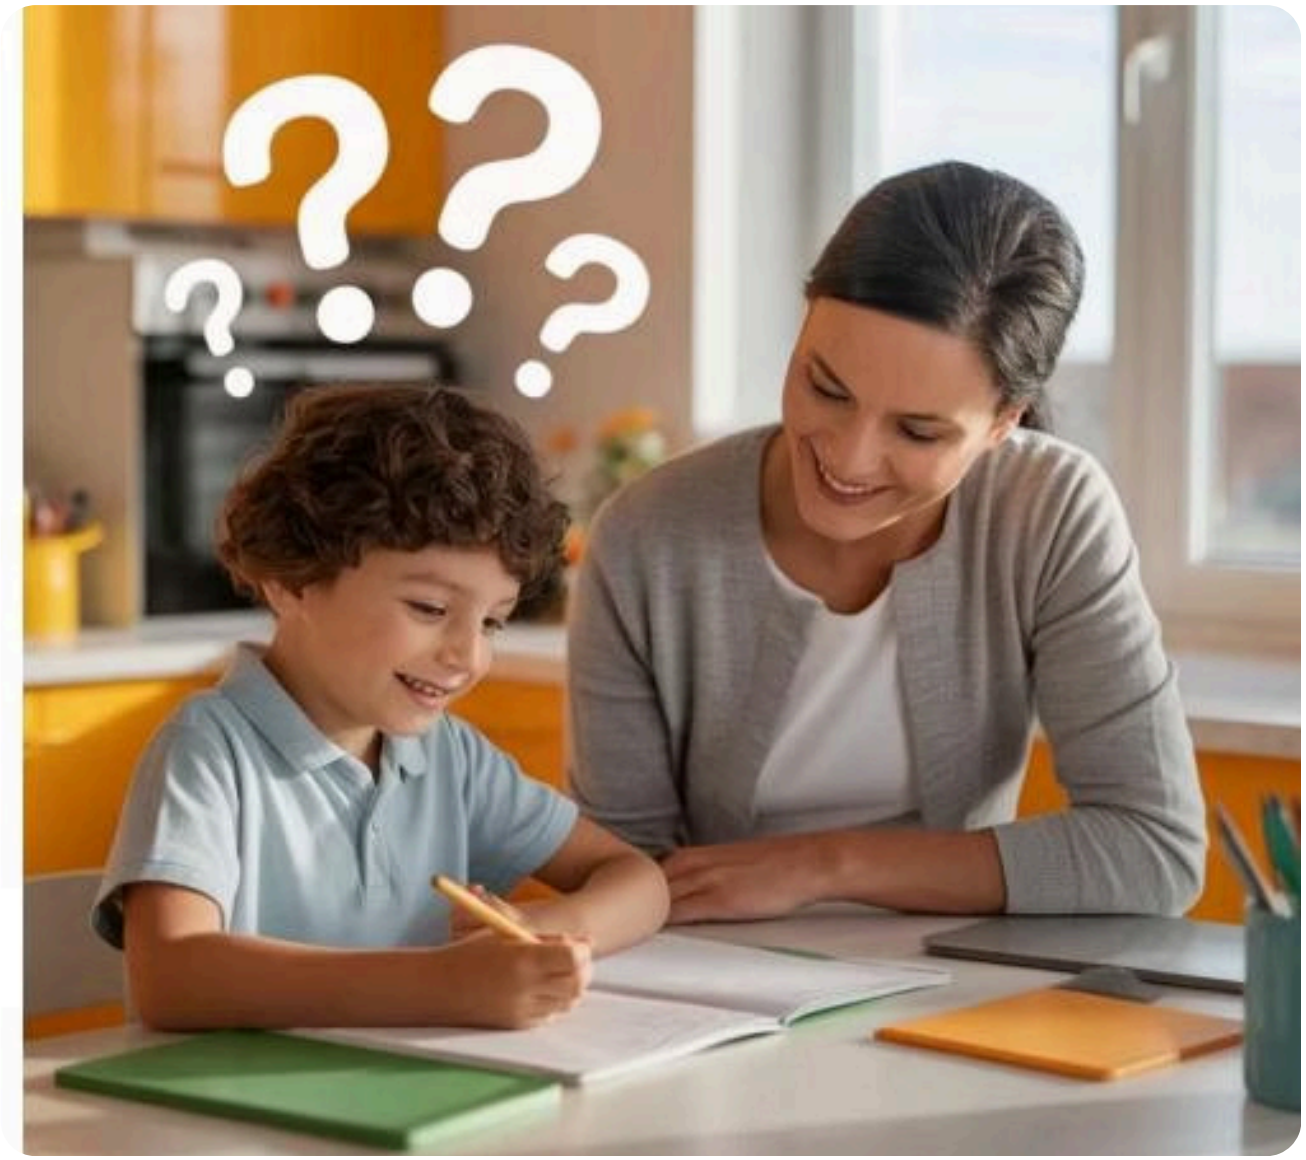

Incorrect Information

Double-check all personal and educational details for accuracy to avoid delays or rejection. Inconsistencies between documents (like different spellings of names) can raise red flags and slow down processing.

Lack of Follow-up

Be proactive in tracking your application status and responding to any requests for additional information. Set reminders to check in with the provincial office at regular intervals. Quick responses to requests show your commitment and professionalism.

Frequently Asked Questions

Do I need teaching qualifications?

NO. The June 2025 Ministerial Guidelines explicitly state that teaching qualifications are NOT required. What matters is your commitment to providing quality education and following national standards.

Must I use the CAPS curriculum?

NO, but CAPS alignment is highly recommended to satisfy provincial preference and ensure national standards are met. It also makes assessment and progression clearer for officials reviewing your application.

Can I start while waiting for approval?

Legally, children must be in registered education. You can request provisional approval in your cover letter to start during the processing period. This shows good faith and allows your child to begin learning immediately.

What happens during site visits?

Visits are discretionary. They check for a dedicated learning space, resources, and evidence of instruction (lesson plans/work). Not all provinces conduct site visits, but being prepared demonstrates your seriousness about home education.
